Policy Overview

The American Medical Association (AMA) Current Procedural Terminology (CPT®) codes for Evaluation and Management (E/M) services represent the professional services of physicians and other qualified health care professionals. These codes include a collection of patient care services rendered on the day of the encounter and certain incidental services rendered on days without a face-to-face visit. A number of ordinarily performed physician services are included in the payment for the E/M service and are not paid separately.

The purpose of this policy is to define payment criteria for incidental diagnostic and laboratory tests when billed with E/M services.

Policy Description

Per CPT guidelines, E/M services include examinations, evaluations, treatments, conferences with or concerning patients, preventive pediatric and adult health supervision, and similar medical services, such as the determination of the need and/or location for appropriate care. E/M services are determined by two components of physician work:

- Medical decision making
- Time

Medical decision making refers to the complexity of establishing a diagnosis for the problems addressed during the encounter and/or selecting a management option as measured by the amount and/or complexity of medical records, diagnostic tests, and/or other information that must be obtained, reviewed, and analyzed. Therefore, the review and analysis of common diagnostic tests are included in the medical decision-making component of E/M services and should be appropriately documented in the patient's medical record.

CPT guidelines further instruct that the actual performance and/or interpretation of diagnostic tests/studies ordered during a patient encounter are not included in the levels of E/M services. Physician performance of diagnostic tests/studies for which specific CPT codes are available may be reported separately, in addition to the appropriate E/M code. The physician's interpretation of the results of diagnostic tests/studies (i.e., professional component), with preparation of a separately distinctly identifiable signed written report, may also be reported separately, using the appropriate CPT code with modifier -26 appended. Therefore, the review and analysis of those diagnostic tests and services that do not ordinarily warrant a separately identifiable signed report, but which results are documented and commented upon in the body of the physician documentation in the medical record will not be separately reimbursed.

Reimbursement

Reimbursement for the review and analysis of incidental diagnostic and laboratory tests performed during an E/M service will be included in the payment for the E/M service and not reimbursed separately.

Documentation Requirements

The medical record must support the need for a separately identifiable and signed report for the diagnostic test beyond what would ordinarily be expected within the range of services that comprise an E/M service for separate payment to be made. Under such circumstances, modifier -25 must be appended to the applicable E/M service to receive payment.
